Target Group: All staff that work directly with children and young people, who could be in a position of supporting that young person in the event of a loss or bereavement.

This course is suitable for anyone working with children and young people who are or may become bereaved.

The course examines the benefits of clear straightforward communication with bereaved children and young people in order to build trust and support them through the grieving process.

Participants will learn and develop strategies in communicating effectively with bereaved children and young people, as well as gain an understanding of how grief can have an impact on the ability to communicate.

Finally, the course will explore the importance of building resilience in bereaved children and young people, and techniques through which this can be achieved.

This course aims to:
• Give participants an understanding of the importance of communicating clearly with bereaved children and young people.
• Provide participants with strategies in communicating effectively with bereaved children and young people.
• Demonstrate how adults can support children and young people through building resilience using clear communication techniques.

On the completion of this course participants will be able to:
• Recognise the importance of effective communication with bereaved children and young people.
• Confidently communicate appropriately with bereaved children and young people.
• Understand how to build resilience in children and young people, and have the tools to be able to achieve this.

Cost: No further charge for fully subscribing organisations. Non-subscribing organisations will be charged £220.
