

“Messy play ensure inclusion for all by considering the various needs of the children. They are attentive and accommodating, providing different ways for the children to access the sensory stimulating activities.

My son loved the different textures on his hands and we were introduced to resources that I now use in the home with him.

My daughter loved the freedom she had with the different areas and that she was encouraged to explore them in any way she chose, which was to combine all the mixable items to make a bubbly concoction! We had lots of fun.”

“We have been to two sessions so far and my 3 year old is really enjoying it, she usually finds toddler activities difficult to join in with but has found the set up and quiet session easier to cope with. I’m really glad we are able to access these sessions as this is the 4th or 5th toddler structured activity that we have tried, and the first that she has really enjoyed. Nette has also been really welcoming of my older child who has ASD.”
